

Dear Colleague,

I am pleased to announce that in 2013 the Chiara D'Onofrio Foundation will award the homonymous Prize to a well-known Italian researcher, operating in Italy or abroad, who is younger than 43 years old. The € 10,000 Prize will be awarded during the annual meeting of the Italian Biophysics and Molecular Biology Society (SIBBM) which will be held in Pavia on June 5th to 7th 2013.

The international scientific contribution of the winners of past editions makes it one of the top award for excellence in the Italian scientific community. The Foundation, relying on your scientific expertise, appeals to your person for the identification of the winner nominating scientists that may be considered for the Prize. Your contribution will be crucial because the Foundation Scientific Committee can choose the winner only among the names that will be noticed.

The deadline to send your proposal is February 28, 2013. The Scientific Committee will meet in the first weeks of March to designate the winner. The proposal must be sent by email to comitatoscientifico@fondazionechiaradonofrio.org and must include:

- a) the name of the nominated scientist specifying that it will be younger than 43 in June 2013;
- b) the reasons for which the nomination is proposed;
- c) a short CV of the proposed scientist (one page);
- d) a list of his/her top 10 publications.

Visit <http://www.fondazionechiaradonofrio.org> website to find all informations about the Foundation, including the composition of the Scientific Committee, the winners of the previous editions and the call for the award of the Prize in 2013.

Sincerely

Francesco De Leo
